

Sideline Sizzle

*"When you fish for love, bait with your heart, not your brain."
Mark Twain*

The last woman Sabrina Hopewell wants to emulate is her mother, the perfect wife. The “great sacrifice” her mother made to marry her football coach father has colored Sabrina’s relationships ever since she was old enough to date. As the Real Fans Sports Networks’s first female sideline reporter to grace college football, Sabrina has had to harden her heart to loving anything outside her career.

The last woman Mason Ransome wants as a wife is a career-obsessed prima donna like his ex. The young coach of the South Georgia University Raiders has led them to national prominence in the short space of time since SGU started football but has a lousy track record in love. This lack of faith and trust in the opposite sex AND football are the only things Sabrina and Mason have in common.

That is until a pivotal moment during the SGU Championship Game where their undeniable attraction becomes something to warily explore rather than fight. But when tragedy rocks Sabrina’s world and Mason struggles to stay on top while balancing being a single Dad, their budding relationship teeters on its axis. Their respective issues, baggage, and collateral damage threaten to derail something truly special.

Will Mason’s strong Faith influence Sabrina? Will Sabrina come to understand that sharing her life does not have to be a sacrifice? Will Mason’s young daughter accept any woman who seems to pale in comparison to her own glamorous mother? Will they lead with their hearts rather than their brains?
